

MILLIONAIRE'S SON REFUSED BAIL ON CHARGE OF MURDER

WALTER WARD, INDICTED FOR MURDER OF SAILOR, PLEADS
"NOT GUILTY" WHEN ARRAIGNED IN COURT.

White Plains, N. Y., June 17.—Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire head of the Ward Baking company, who confessed killing Clarence Peters, an ex-sailor, yesterday pleaded not guilty to the indictment for first degree murder returned against him by the Westchester county grand jury Thursday.

Ward was arraigned before Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauer. After the indictment had been read, Allan R. Campbell, of counsel for the Ward family asked for an immediate trial. This was denied by Justice Morschauer.

In announcing that his client pleaded not guilty, Attorney Campbell said he reserved the right to withdraw his plea and substitute another at any time during the court proceedings.

Justice Morschauer refused to admit Ward to bail. The defendant will have to remain in the Westchester county jail until his case goes to trial. Ward was obviously nervous. His lips twitched and his hands shook. His face was drawn and he appeared in ill health.

"If Ward is innocent he should not be made to suffer in jail," said Attorney Campbell. "We have reached a time when, if the case is not tried immediately, it will have to go over the entire summer."

"The trial will take its ordinary course. This case should not be distinguished from any other," the judge said.

John B. Brennan, another defense lawyer, told the court that no legal evidence had been adduced against Ward.

In replying to Mr. Brennan Justice Morschauer said that it would be well if counsel for the defense could produce Charlie Ross and Bill Jackson, who are said to have been with Peters when he was killed.

The justice intimated that the case would be hastened if material witnesses and "members of the Ward family who are outside the jurisdiction of the New York courts" could be produced.

The judge's reference embraced George S. Ward, who has been a Williamsport, Pa., for about a week, where he is involved in federal court litigation. He was wanted as a witness before the grand jury, but failed to appear.

Attorney Campbell said at the present time he did not know the whereabouts of Ross and Jackson.

Miss Marie Fribbs, 707 West Washington street, riding a bicycle, narrowly escaped serious injury last night about 8:35, when she accidentally collided with a Ford touring car. Miss Fribbs had turned off of Main street onto Leland street and after making the turn she crashed into the rear fender of the auto. She was thrown to the pavement and the bicycle was damaged. However, she was not badly injured.

Her First Love Adventure.

I was fifteen then. It was after midnight, when my girl friend and I left a dance, and we were afraid to go home. Two young men asked us if they might escort us home, and we consented. The young man who took me, asked me to call him up the next day. My affair was love at first sight, but ended when I called him up. He asked who was speaking and I said, "I'm the girl you escorted home last night." Imagine how I felt when he said, "Which one?" I hung up the receiver, and that ended my love affair. I haven't seen him since. —Chicago Journal.

"Biglow Papers."

The "Biglow Papers" were a series of humorous and satirical poems which at two critical times in the nation's history made James Russell Lowell not only a popular poet but an important figure in the life of the country. The first, relating to the Mexican war, appeared in 1848; the second, dealing with the Civil war and reconstruction, in 1867. Both were signed with the fictitious name of Hosea Biglow.

A motion was made by the defense for a new trial.

This is the largest number of defendants convicted at one time on one charge in the history of Adams county, which has had a circuit court for ninety-seven years.

CALLS HISTORIC OLD MAN A PLAIN LIAR

Urbana, Ill., June 17.—The ancient Assyrian, founder of the world's first imperial system, had too much about his feet at arms and in so doing gave himself such a bad character that the truth is just now coming out, according to Prof. A. T. Olmstead of the University of Illinois.

Prof. Olmstead, who is head of the middle western branch of the American Oriental Society, bases his new view of the Assyrian, popularly recalled as coming down "like a wolf on the fold," in substantial measure on the discovery within the past year of the first Assyrian code of laws.

He points to one provision of this code as indicating that Assyrians were more than they are popularly called. This requires that the destitute widow be supported by her sons "as the bride whom one loves."

Instead of the Assyrian being wholly subject, their letters, he said, show high officials speaking their minds with the greatest plainness, the kings making pathetic appeals to those whose support they would win. Their imperial free cities were as free as those in western Europe in the middle ages, with charters of freedom from taxes, and trading rights to the four corners of the earth and to all tongues.

"The Assyrian temple or palace is a totally new type, with borrowings from Babylon, from Egypt, from Syria, but it is a whole, not a patchwork of parts," Prof. Olmstead said. "In Babylon we see the bas-reliefs which climb the walls of the Assyrian palace. These bas-reliefs give us the best as well as the worst of Assyria; if we have the scene of torture, we also have the words in their mouths, the fisherman waiting a bite on his line, or investigating the contents of his lunch basket, the tender family scenes and the departed, the wonderful animal life. One need not be perhaps over-enthusiastic statement of the art critic that here was the finest art before Phidias, to realize that Assyrian art is worth our consideration."

"The statement that the Assyrian was no man of literature is made in the face of the historical annals, with their wealth of imagery, even to purple patches, and we have nothing like it in Babylonian. There has been no systematic attempt to discover purely Assyrian productions in the libraries of Nineveh, but enough has been discovered to make the Assyrian genius certain."

HARDING'S PLEA FOR TARIFF OVER BONUS WINS IN U. S. SENATE

PRESIDENT'S INSISTENCE THAT SOLDIER LEGISLATION IS SECOND IN IMPORTANCE CONFIRMED BY G. O. P. LEADERS.

Washington, June 17.—Under a compromise agreement arranged yesterday by Republican leaders in conference with President Harding, the soldier bonus will be attached to the legislative schedule and the tariff is passed.

A resolution emphasizing the importance of the soldier bonus has been drafted for submission by the Republican senate caucus on Monday. It provides for holding the tariff before the senate committee until the Democratic filibuster wears out. When it is out of the way the bonus will be taken up and the senate will not be permitted to adjourn until the bonus is passed.

It is understood that Senator McCumber (N. D.), chairman of the Finance committee, has yielded to the terms of the compromise. Although Thursday he was heard to say that to those who were trying to postpone action on the bonus, "Mr. McCumber promises that the senate would not adjourn until the bonus was passed."

If the Republican caucus decides to put off the bonus until after the tariff is passed, Democratic leaders will make their motion to take up the bonus, probably early in the week. They pointed out that if the Republican program goes through, action on the bonus will be held up probably making it impossible to act on it again on June 17 next, the date fixed by the Finance committee.
